2. To get your student started:
 1. These cowboys seem very comfortable with their horses. One cowboy is resting on his horse while holding the reins of the other horse standing alongside him. The other cowboy is standing by his horse, adjusting the saddle on his back. His reins have fallen down while the horse eats grass underneath his feet.
 2. The setting is beautiful. It looks like a fall morning, with horses and men standing on the green grass, near the dirt path next to the water. They are standing among the trees, some with fall leaves on top of them. They are close to some foothills and not too far from the mountains. The sun above is shining down on them brightly, and they seem to be just getting started with the day.
 3. The horses and men stand near each other, next to a quiet pond. They must be friends since the one cowboy who is ready to go is waiting for the cowboy behind him. The horses stand calmly beside each other, among the evergreen trees and green grass. The cowboy in front faces toward the mountains, looking ready for the day's ride.
